

First screening of European agroecology living labs and research infrastructures initiatives

The European Commission has published an online survey ^[1] in the context of the discussion on building a European research and innovation partnership on agroecology living labs and research infrastructures under Horizon Europe. The survey aims at a first identification of potentially interesting initiatives in Europe that have some components of agroecology living labs or of research infrastructures that could contribute to strengthening research and accelerating innovation in agroecology.

You can find out more about European R&I partnership on agroecology living labs and research infrastructures here ^[2] and contribute to the questionnaire until 15 December 2020.
